SECOND TRAINING DAYS

The profession of the coach/trainer is a complex task which requires a considerable level of qualification in order to be exercised successfully. It implies the acquisition and application of different knowledge and skills, which are now known as competences; "theoretical" and "practical" know-how which should be mastered in order to be able to practice the profession optimally.

We are becoming more and more aware of the progress and improvements being made in the different training components, thanks to the incipient research and the improvements in the day-to-day reality of the profession itself. The initial training is only the beginning of a process which will equip coaches with the necessary skills for the present, but the future holds a series of needs to which we must adapt as fast as possible.

This is why at OD-4 we are committed to PERMANENT TRAINING, so we do not fall behind in the whirlwind of today's competitive environment.
